

Download Plaintext Configs from Web Interface

The plaintext configs are saved on the server in a folder. The configs on the web page have each line prepended with the line number. It would be nice to be able to download the plaintext config right from the website, or in some other way turn off the line numbers without having to grab the file from the config archive folder.